ANNEXURE-BDO'S AND DON'T FOR THE PARTICIPANTS IN THE YOUTH PARLIAMENT COMPETITIONS

1. The University and students participating in the AIU Women Student Parliament Competitions should bear in mind that this scheme is a unique one. It is aimed to make these University's Girls Youth Parliaments as the nurseries of future parliamentarians. If rightly implemented and its organizers and imbued with a sense of duty and dedication, it is likely to pay rich dividends in the shape of all round improvement in our national character and Women Empowerment outlook. This aspect should always be kept in view while the Universities/Colleges volunteer themselves for participation in these competitions.
2. It should not be forgotten that democracy offers political methods by which every citizen has the opportunity of participating through discussion and debates in an attempt to reach a voluntary agreement as to what should be done for the good of the community as a whole. It precludes the method of arriving at a decision on social policy in the streets as these are the ways of monocracy and not of democracy. Thus the scheme of AIU Women Student Parliament Competitions would help to start a movement amongst Women Student of the Universities/Colleges to channelize their energy into healthy and constructive activities so that they may become useful citizens of tomorrow for the cause of Women Empowerment in the World.
3. The subject to be selected for discussions in these AIU Women Student Parliament Competitions should be as far as possible non-controversial. They should largely deal with the problems confronting the educational institutions and their day to day problems. The subject should relate to welfare activities, define of the country, social justice and social reforms, economic development, communal harmony, discipline, health of the students, Human Rights etc.
4. Two most important parts of the list of business of a AIU Women Student Parliament Competitions " are the „Questions“ and the „Debate“ or „Discussion“. During Question Hour, the judges are likely to be impressed by quality of questions asked and the quality of replies given by the Ministers. During the Debate or Discussions, they particularly look for the standard of Debate and the quality of expression.
5. The participants should scrupulously avoid mention of the existing political parties and political personalities in the country. They should give imaginary or fictitious names to their parties and personalities. They should not give any impression that they have any leanings or bias for or against any political party or philosophy.
6. It would be in the interest of the participating Universities if they were to have their own Women Student Parliament Competitions" which should serve as the "debating societies" for promoting debating talents in their students. Thus, at the time of selecting the names of participants they can draw upon the talent from these "Parliaments".

7. The participants should show utmost respect to the Chair. They should abide by the decisions of the Chair and should have faith in his impartiality and judgments.
8. Every member while coming to the House for its sitting should bow to the Chair and similarly while leaving the Chamber bow to the Chair.
9. The members should not say or do anything on the floor of the House that is not warranted by rules of procedures or by the ruling or precedence or by the accepted and established customs and conventions of the House.
10. There should be no discussion on sensitive policy matters affecting the relations of our country with foreign friendly Governments or which will prove embarrassing for the country and its present day Government.
11. A member should never cross the floor while the House is sitting i.e. he should never pass between the Chair and any member who is speaking. Violation of this rule is regarded as a breach of Parliamentary etiquette.
12. Members should not sit with their backs to the Chair. When a member wants to speak he should raise hands to attract the attention of the Chair. No member should speak unless he or she has „Caught“ the eye of the Speaker and has been permitted by the Chair by name or by a sign, to speak.
13. Every member should resume her seat as the Speaker rises to speak or calls out “order-order” and also when any other member is in possession of the floor. Two or more members should not keep standing at the same time.
14. No member should rise or leave the House when the Speaker is addressing the House. “The Speaker is always to be heard in silence”.
15. No member should read out a written speech. However, a member may feel free to consult his notes whenever she losses track of his prepared speech or text.
16. Personal references by way of imputations or questions against the bonafides of any member should not be resorted to. A member must not address individual members of the House. She should always address the Chair and make all remarks to other members through the Chair.
17. Members should not distribute within the precincts of the House or inside the legislature questionnaires or pamphlets not connected with the business of the House.
18. The member during participation in the discussion can use either English or Hindi. However, if a member wants to speak in any other language, she is supposed to do so with the permission of the Speaker, but before speaking she is supposed to furnish in advance a copy of the translation of his speech in Hindi/English.
19. In short all participants in these Youth Parliaments should so conduct themselves as to inspire respect for Parliament and Parliamentary Institutions.
