Srinagar, Mar 26: The Kashmiri students of Meewar University have expressed their displeasure over playing up of a minor scuffle between some students in the campus that has left their parents worried in Kashmir.

The students called Greater Kashmir office and termed the recent incident of a scuffle as of a small nature. "There was a minor confrontation between some students at the campus but it was blown out of the proportion," said Rifat Jan, a student of bachelor of Physiotherapy. "The issue was resolved soon but the media highlighted only the scuffle part."

In a joint statement, the students said that all Kashmiris are safe in the University and there is no need to worry. "We don't feel any threat as is being projected in the media," said Seerat Mir, a student of MBA. "We request all outsiders not to spread rumors that create doubts in the minds of our parents."

The students alleged that since the time the incident was reported in the media, their parents have been worried in Kashmir. "Our parents are worried after reading these news reports although the reality is completely different," said Gowhar Jan, LLB student at the university. "The media focus has increased unwanted pressure in the mind of our parents in Kashmir."

According to reports the Meewar University has over 550 Kashmiri students on their rolls. On March 21 some Kashmiri students had clashed with some other students and the statement, according to the statement, was amicably resolved.

"The issue was blown out of proportion that sent a wave of concern among hundreds of families in Kashmir," said Muhammed Nadeem Itoo, a bachelor student of Zoology. "We have been here for years and the environment is very friendly."
